NEW ORLEANS, March 5.- The Firemen's demonstration yesterday was the finest one we ever witnessed in this city. The engines were beautifully and tastefully decorated, and the day passed off pleasantly, with the exception of the arrest by the military of the band of No. 13 for playing the "Bonnie Blue Flag," and other Southern airs.

Getty had assumed command of the Rio Grande District, vice Col. Brown. Military matters were quiet. Cortinas was about twelve miles above Matamoros, on the Mexican side. The death of the Liberal chief, Mendez, from wounds received in taking the Rancho de Fanquita, is confirmed. An impgrial decree has been issued which seems to do away with that which made the Rio Grande ports free ports of entry, the duties being paid only when the goods went into the interior. Reports of murders and robberies on the Rio Grande still continue.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Passage by the Senate of the House Resolution Excluding Southern Representatives-Terms on which They May be Admitted Laid Down by Wilson, of Massachusetts.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Senate to-day was the scene of a protracted debate on the House concurrent resolution, relative to the Southern Representatives, which ended by the passage of the reso-lution by—ayes 29, noes 18.

The Republican Senators who voted against it with the Democrats were Cowan, Dixon, Doolittle, Lane, of Kan-sas, Morgan, Norton and Van Winkle. The resolution as it passed both Houses is as follows-being a concurrent resolution it does not require the signature of the President: Be it Resolved, By the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, that in order to close the question which seems likely to disturb the action of the Govern-ment, as well as to quiet the uncertainty or Representative shall be admitted into either branch of Congress from any of the said States until Congress shall have declared such State entitled to such repreno such condition.

Senator Sherman, rising to a personal explanation, relative to Reverdy Johnson's speech of yesterday, said that Chief Justice Chase never saw the resolutions affirming the right of a State to decide on the constitutionality of a United States law, which were passed at Cleveland in 1859, during the Oberlin excitement.

Mr. Sherman added that Justice Chase o such condition.

Mr. Sherman added that Justice Chase did speak at the meeting referred to, but was not aware that any such resolutions were passed, and that his speech, and that of the executive of Ohio, in favor of law and order, was such as to cause dissent from those who composed the Cleveland meeting.

Senator Wilson, during next week, will intended as in the addition for the sale of the sale o introduce a joint resolution for the admission of the Southern Representatives on the following grounds:

1st. That the States shall give suffrage

2d. That they shall repudiate the whole rebel debt.

3d. That they shall give colored persons all civil rights.

The Court Ball at the Tuilleries.

As some of our lady readers may like to know how the Empress and American ladies were dressed at the grand carnival ball at the Tuilleries, we copy the following from the Paris correspondent of the New York World :

Americans were not so numerous at court as in former years. Once on a time, when Mr. Mason was Minister here, there were one handred and thirty of our country folk presented to their Majesties in a batch. Mr. Mason did not give himself or his imperial host the trouble of naming each person, but just introduced them as "My countrymen and country-

them as "My countrymen and countrywomen, your Majesty."

There were twenty-two who paid their respects to the Emperor and Empress on Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Van Renssalaer, Miss Hall, and Mr. and Mrs.
John Payne, Miss Dunn, and Mr., Mrs. and the Misses Edgerton, Miss Helen Mason, Mr. Francis Stout, of New York,
Miss Morgan, of London, Mrs. Hurd, Miss Ware, of Philadelphia, Mr. Hines, and Miss McCreery, Miss Gay, of St.
Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Ord, of San Francisco, Mrs. Schliecker, of Baltimore. It may be remarked that there are very few gentlemen on the list of Americans; gentlemen on the list of Americans; there is always a far larger proportion of ladies, while I remarked that of Europeans there were more than double the number of gentlemen than ladies.

The Empress does not look so young as she did a year age; then, at a short distance, when dressed in one of her ex-quisite toilettes, she did not look more than twenty: now, although still very beautiful, and still retaining the graceful outline of the neck and shoulders, which is one of her peculiar charms, she looks thirty and over, though not forty, which age she attains on her next birth-day. The dress was of tulle, of many skirts; the upper one, as light as gossamer, showed through its transport folds a trimming of green water grasses, which fell wavily from the seams of an under skirt. The corsage was trimmed with a sort of wreath of the same grass, over which hung a fringe of diamonds attached on the left shoulder by a knot of diamonds, and on the right by a long diamond hoop — a knot of diamonds fastened her belt in front. [N. B.—No points were worn.] In con-trast to the fresh green, her Majesty wore a ribbon of three stripes, the inner one white, the two outer ones of rose color, the decoration of the Order of Civil Merit, lately sent to her by the Emperor Maxi-milian as an acknowledgment of her devotion to her people during the cholera. This beautiful toilet was completed by a garland of grasses, attached in front with a diamond star, a necklace of diamonds as large as hickory nuts, and heavy diamond ear-rings. Apart from the jewels, the dress might have been worn by a girl of sixteen. Her Majesty's taste has heretofore been infallible. She will, in all probability, soon discover that stately silks and sating are most becoming to

The young ladies' toilets were remarkably pretty and fresh. Miss W. wore a white silk dress, with tulle flounces, and white rotes in her hair. Miss McC. wore a white tulle dress, trimmed with flowers, and white roses and green leaves in her hair. Mrs. G. wore a similar dress, trim-med with pink roses. All the other young ladies were dressed in white tulle; dress resembling the others, the greatest difference being produced by the variety in the manner of trimming.

Among the Americans previously pre-sented who received invitations to the ball, I observed Mrs. J. R., of New York, with her brothers; Mrs. V. L-t, Mr. and Mrs. B-k-th, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore E-s, Mrs. R-s, and May, the artist.

A Magnificent Relic of the Revolution. We clip the following from the Balti, more Sun, of Saturday:

There is now on exhibition at the jeweiry store of Messrs. W. Brown & Co., southeast corner of Baltimore and Charles streets, a relic of the revolutionwhich is agitating the minds of the people of the eleven States which have been declared to be in insurrection, no Senator snuff box, presented by Louis XVI, King of France, to Col. The manly address of Col. Laurens had the desired effect, his mission being crowned with success by France advanc-ing the material aid asked for,

James Redpath, who is well known in ome quarters, on anti-slavery and antito such colored people as can read the Constitution, and who have served in the Southern to the core, is responsible for the following: Boston is unquestionably the hab of the universe, the apple of the eye of Cosmos, the brightest fruit of modern Culyatum, the Athens of America, the New Jerusalem in disguise, the Celestial City, the home of the arts, the Mecenas Metropolis, the Unapproachable, the Very Great. We all know these facts. Who dare doubt them? People born in other cities may go to heaven, but who dreams of saying that the Bostonians as a matter of course won't go? The Bostonians and the people in its suburbs—New England, fully conscious of these self-evident truths, are sometimes suspected of illustrating them in their manners. One or two of these justly distinguished persons have taught schools in the Sea Islands; and the negroes, not properly informed as to the causes of their self-consciousness, have thered—improperly, we know—that ihey were rather "consequential."

A New England chaplain was exam-

a negro class in geography at a school in the negro municipality of Mitchellville. They answered every question quickly and properly. But, thinking that they might be repeating by rote, he undertook to cross-examine them. Among other interrogations he asked them:

Well, what is the difference between the people of Boston, for example, and the people of South Carolina?" One black little hand went up.

"Well, what is it?" said the chaplain.
"People from Boston put on airs."

Chief Justice Chase.

The Boston Commercial, a Republican print, says:

Yet Chief Justice Chase seems to feel very uncomfortable and restless in his exaited seat. In fact, he evidently regards it as a sort of quarantine ground or, to use a nautical phrase, the dol-drums, in which he lies becalmed, when he should be running ten knots an hour with bellowing canvas filled with the genuine popular aura, his port of destina-tion, of course being the White House. The ermine is not to his taste. He enjoys the popular assembly and the application of the multitude more than the quiet of the courtroom, ation and unimpassioned exercise of his reason. He has perambulated the whole country since his appointment to his present position. He is constantly showing himself on platforms, before miscellaneous adiences. We do not wish to be captious, or to assert that it is not perfectly proper for him to take upon himself the entire supervision of the freedmen of the South, and to act as usher at Washington and elsewhere for Mr. Frederick Douglass. Certainly his course finds no sanction in the examples of his distinguished pre-decessors in office. The truth is Chief Justice Chase made up his mind some time ago to be President of the United States, and when a man has done that he is likely to be altogether too restless and nervous, too much on the look out for favorable breezes, to give that calm con sideration to legal questions which a great judicial magistrate should. We are sorry for Judge Chase. He ought to be con-

Many who were familiar with the Southern newspaper press before the war, and have become acquainted with it since, are astonished at its vast improvement in size, mechanical execution and editorial ability. But they are amazed, above all, at the quantity of advertisements. Selecting from a few exchanges at random, one of our contempo raries lately counted in the Mobile Tribune, of 32 columns, 27 of advertisements; in the Memphis Commercial, 37 of its 48 columns devoted to advertising, and in the New Orleans Crescent, 38 out of 56, The same extraordinary activity in all the Southern newspapers. The smaller towns have each their two or three dai lies, running over with the wants, etc. of the business community; and the char acter of these advertisements is no less suggestive than their number.

Senator Cowan spoke for two hours against the resolution in a strong conservative strain, fully indorsing the President and his point of reconstruction, and arging upon Congress the immediate admission of loyal Southern Representatives.

Killed by the Bite of an Insect.

Mr. Peter Fischer, a German citizen of Peoria, Ill., on the 15th day of July went out hunting with a companion. While in the woods, Mr. F. was bitten on the back of the neck by a poisonous insect. He made his way home, in great arony, and died in a few hours. He was itsured in the Travelers of Hartfori for $300, and the money was paid to his widow July 28th. Our assent writes:

"This is one of the best examples I have witnessed of the charitable side of our business. A German woman, past middle age, without relatives in this country, unable to speak English, with six children, nearly all young, and no money. The Germania Life steps up and pays her one thousand, and the Travelers Insurance Company, of Hartford, two thousand dollars. It would have warmed your heart to be able to pay this woman. Tears filled her eyes for the husband she had lost, and with joy that the little ones would be cared for."
